Olympics hospitality company Jet Set Sports has entered into a six-year sponsorship agreement with The International Federation for Equestrian Sports (FEI), the world governing body of horse sport.

The agreement sees Jet Set Sports become the Lausanne-based organisation's exclusive sponsor in the hospitality sector. In this role it will offer hospitality programmes at the Rio 2016 Olympic and Paralympic Games and the Tokyo 2020 Olympic and Paralympic Games to all FEI stakeholders.

It will also work with the FEI to develop hospitality packages for major equestrian events.

"We are delighted to announce Jet Set Sports as the FEI's latest sponsor," said Lisa Lazarus, the FEI's chief of business development and strategy. "As our exclusive sponsor in the hospitality sector, Jet Set Sports will offer our stakeholders a wealth of unique hospitality programmes at major international sporting events."

Alan Dizdarevic, the co-chief executive at Jet Set Sports, added: "Jet Set Sports provides top quality hospitality for world class sporting events. The FEI is the perfect partner to help us reach an international audience that has an interest in attending and enjoying major sports events in the luxury of premium hospitality."

Jet Set Sports also sponsors eight National Olympic Committees, including Australia, Great Britain, Russia, and the United States of America.
